DESCRIPTION OF GENERAL FALKENHAYN'S VICTORY

When He Routed the Russo-Ruman Armies in Western Wallachia.

Berlin, Tuesday, Nov. 21, noon.—(By Wireless to Sayville, Nov. 22.)—After a long silence imposed by the direct wish of General Falkenhayn, who did not wish to have any hopes raised by premature accounts of his operations, descriptions of the mounting victory of the Teutonic forces in the battle of Tirgutu which broke the resistance of the Russo-Rumanian armies in western Wallachia, and opened the way to the Rumanian plain are now available. The battle was fought from November 15 to 17 after the German and Austro-Hungarian forces, in a week of steady combats, had forced their way from the summits of the mountains on the Rumanian-Transylvanian frontier to the foot of the Alpine regions, mastering the armored surges of the permanent frontier fortifications with big mortars and breaking the Rumanian resistance wherever it was encountered.

Ejected from the wild, mountainous regions to the rolling foothills beyond, the Rumanians, who by now had received heavy Russian reinforcements, elected to stand on the range of hills running east and west and lying south of Tirgutu, the first important town of the mountain. The position was naturally strong and a heavy fog enabled the Rumanians to take up their positions unmolested by the pursuers.

The German and Austro-Bulgarian forces attacked them with fervor and after three days of heaviest fighting, crushed their way by frontal attacks through the middle of the Rumanian line from the Jul to the Ploesti Rivers. The Rumanian losses in the battle are described as very hard.

The German cavalry had been held in readiness behind the line and the squadrons now poured through the breach and raced down through the valley towards the railway thirty miles away, driving before them the fleeing Russians and Rumanians and breaking the efforts at resistance of all but the strongest units which still held together. They were hustled on by

FRANCE AND RUSSIA ARE IMPORTING CHINESE

Number at Work in French Munitions Plants Estimated at 20,000.

Washington, Nov. 22.—France and Russia, the American government has learned, are importing thousands of Chinese to work in munitions factories and arsenals to free their native workmen for military duty. The number already put to work in French plants is estimated at 20,000, with 30,000 more under contract by permission of the Chinese government for four years' service in France. Russia has contracted for 20,000 of whom 5,000 have reached the country.

Most of the Orientals are trained artisans, drawing wages in some instances as high as five dollars a day. Specially chartered ships are moving them to France, while Russia is transporting them by way of the Siberian Railway.

Bristol.—Jennie Tracy, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden W. Tracy, of Summer street, was saved from death yesterday after swallowing a deadly pin. The baby had been left in a crib, but the child was soon alarmed by her cries. She found the child black in the face. Dr. Hamblin was called and succeeded in removing the pin. The baby's face was badly lacerated, but she will apparently suffer no ill effects.

pursuing infantry columns which, like the cavalry, made all possible speed to utilize their advantage. So rapid and unrelenting was the pursuit that on November 19 the cavalry had reached the Orsova-Craiova railroad line on a breadth of 12 miles from Strehala station to Fillahs, an important railroad junction where the main passes branches from the main line. The pursuing forces were General Falkenhayn continued to sweep like a flood down the valley and now have reached a point just outside of Orsova, one of the important towns of Rumania.

SUMNER COONY NEAR WESTERLY

Chapman Farm to be Utilized as Site for Handsome Homes—Disposal of Cases in Superior Court—Local Paper Sued for Alleged Libel by C. M. Shay—Check Rewards Firemen for North Stonington Services.

The old frame structure in Canal street, now being raised to make way for the new Crandall building, of brick and modern design, was the original Leonard house, and formerly stood next to the First Baptist church and on part of the site of the Dixon house, now the Rhode Island house. The building was moved to Canal street just before the work on the Dixon house was commenced in 1866. The old building adjoining the old Leonard house in Canal street, was the former home of the Dixons and was located next the Leonard house in the square. In the long ago what is now the business center of Westerly village was commonly termed as Pawcatuck, just as the Pawcatuck today is generally referred to as Westerly. In this connection the following from the Pawcatuck correspondent of the Norwich Bulletin, fifty years ago, is of interest:

"Pawcatuck in 1814 was a port of entry and a place of importance. It comprised at that time Westerly, and that part of the town of Stonington bordering on the Pawcatuck river. Within the entire district, comprising a territory six miles in length along the river, and three miles in width, there were twelve two-story dwelling houses that had at some time been painted white, and the rest of the residences were built of wood, also, and retained their primeval color. The old meeting house on the hill (in rear of the present town hall) was one of native color and the only place of public worship, save occasional evening meetings, the church school on the hill. (The site of the present Hibernian hall). Such was the native simplicity of Pawcatuck.

"A number of enterprising men from the adjoining towns formed a company and built the great stone mill, now a part of the Pawcatuck Textile Company, with basement and attic, of selected stone, mostly taken from the Hibernian quarry, and worked into the building in different sizes and in their native shape. This building was one of the wonders of the age, being visited by the inhabitants of the country for miles around, and admired for its size and beauty!"

The plan to have a triangular contest of hand fire engines for prizes, on Thanksgiving day, between ancient fire fighters owned in Westerly, Noank and Old Mystic, has been abandoned. The Westerly Veteran Firemen's association, who were anxious for the squirting contest, believing that their Star can force a stream a greater distance than can any hand engine in the state of Connecticut. An admirer of the local organization had offered to put up $50 towards a purse to be awarded to the contest worth while. The Westerly vets believe that at some date in the future the old Pawcatuck arrangements can be made for the triangular contest, and that thereafter they will become annual events.

The National Fire Engine and Hose companies will meet in annual contest on Thanksgiving day, at Grovesville, near Westerly, and "squirrel" for the Fales cup, given by Warren R. Fales when he was president of the Narragansett company of Westerly.

The Chapman farm, so-called, located on the old road and comprising over two hundred acres and a substantial farmhouse, which was recently purchased by Dr. John Thompson, is not to be utilized as a summer hotel and a winter school for boys, but is destined to become an exclusive summer colony. The tract contains several miniature ponds, rolling land, plains and wooded land, and the house is a large and comfortable in the section. The farm house and immediate grounds are to be improved and rented as a summer home and be ready for occupancy the next season. The entire tract is to be surveyed, and avenues and building sites planned.

It is the plan to divide the tract into estates of twenty-five acres each and dispose of these to be used as private summer homes, which will be on a par with the best in the Watch Hill colony.

Large blocks of granite have been quarried in Westerly, but none can compare with the mammoth block of granite quarried at a single quarry recently at Rockport, Mass. It was 100 feet wide, 100 feet deep and 275 feet long, and the estimated weight is 225,000 tons. This is said to be the largest single block of granite made in New England, or in the United States.

The petit jury was empaneled in the superior court for Washington county, at Kingston, Wednesday, Judge Elmer J. Rathbun presided. The jurors from Westerly are John W. Berry, Frederick O. Lambear, George N. Burdick, Walter C. Hacco, Alexander G. Taylor, Charles W. Norman and James B. Riddell. For the session, Frederick Law, who had previously pleaded not guilty to the charge of robbery, pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny. John J. Dunn, charged for accused, pleaded for leniency as his client had already been in jail forty-five days. A sentence of twelve months in Providence county jail was imposed.

Harvey Harding, of Narragansett, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of issuing worthless checks. His attorney, Mr. Dunn, was given until Friday morning to file motion. Antonio De Simone, of Westerly, charged with assault, will be in court Friday for sentence. On Friday Otto Baur will be on trial on the charge of being a common drunkard and for assault upon a police officer.

There will be no session of the court today (Thursday). It is expected that the trial of Welcome Main, charged with the murder of Thomas Dorr Main, will be commenced on Friday.

Clarence M. Shay, of the C. M. Shay Fertilizing company, through his attorneys, Bull, McGuffee and Bull, of New London, has brought suit, claiming damages of $10,000 against the Utter company, publishers of the Westerly Sun, for alleged libel. The libelous article, as alleged, was in an editorial and related to the receiving plant of the plaintiff located off Beach street, in Westerly. The publication was during the prevalence of infantile paralysis and it is alleged, was untrue and damaging to the business of defendant. It is understood that retraction was demanded and denied.

Kingston fair, who is in a Providence hospital recovering from a serious sickness, will be discharged next week and return to his home in Exeter. The funeral of the mother of Rev. F. Stewart Kinley, pastor of the First Baptist church, Westerly, was held Tuesday afternoon, at her home in Paradise, N. S. The church sent a floral tribute.

Henry L. Bailey, representing a Hartford insurance company, has sent a check of $27 to Chief Engineer Samuel G. Cottrell in appreciation of service rendered at the Bissell fire in North Stonington Nov. 2.

Funeral services for Alton H. Sweet, 64, were held Wednesday evening at his home on the Bradford road, Burroughs, a nurse who had been employed for many years as a tool maker at the Cottrell plant.
